

ABSTRACT

An attachment film for an electronic display, which film is used for adjusting the optical transmissivity in a variety of electronic displays and adjusting color shades. It permits the simple and easy adjustment of the reflection of a fluorescent lamp and sunlight in and from the screen thereof and can prevent the formation of air bubbles in an adhesive layer thereof. The attachment film includes a transparent substrate and an adhesive layer which contains carbon black dispersed therein and formed on one surface of a transparent substrate.

RECEIVED
DEC 04 2000
TECHNOLOGY CENTER 2800